What the New Stamp is Like.

The new 5 cent stamp is known as vandyke brown, and was suggested by Mrs. Garfield, blue or carmine being favored by the postal authorities. It was originally intended to place Garfield's portrait on the proposed $2 stamp, but the death of the President put an end to that project. All other United States portrait stamps present the head of the figure in profile. In the stamp the portrait is three-fourths to the left on lined ground within pearled oval in proper heraldic shield. With the intention of keeping the stamp a portrait all inscriptions have been grounded below. At the lower extremity of the shield is a six-pointed star, with a large numerical "5," with ribbons on either side bearing value in letters. Below all is the inscription "U. S. Postage." The stamp will be a living monument to President Garfield, and it is a perfect little gem of art.

THE Frankfort correspondent of the Courier-Journal says:

The Court of Appeals has to-day been engaged in hearing arguments on the Neal and Craft cases. From the intimations that cropped out from the bench during the day, it is thought by lawyers—and not those for the defense alone—that there will be a reversal. In that event it is probable that public indignation will have become so cooled down that a court of justice can sit at Ashland without needing the protection of the militia.

MAMBRINO KING, the fine horse exhibited at our fair last fall, was sold a few days ago by Dr. Herr the owner, to C. J. Hamlin of Buffalo, N. Y. ## MAYSVILLE.

Died, of cerebral apoplexy, Mrs. Mary Jane Jackson, wife of James A. Jackson, at the Stonehall House, Maysville, Ky., April 15, 1882, in the forty-ninth year of her age. Her remains were interred in the cemetery Sunday at three o'clock, p. m. The funeral discourse was delivered at the Christian Church to a large audience by Rev. W. J. Loos, assisted by Rev. Mr. Riley, of the Baptist Church.

Verily, "in the midst of life we are in death." This community was indeed shocked at the sudden death on Saturday evening last, of this most estimable lady—called as she was from the bosom of her family, in the prime of life and fullness of health.

In the afternoon, she was calling and was as usual bright and cheerful. Never was the sunniness of her disposition more noticeable. After partaking of a hearty supper she complained of faintness, and was assisted to her couch, became comatose and so died in a few minutes. Able physicians attended her, but her fleeting spirit, subservient to the will of the Master, found relief only with Him.

She is remembered by a bereaved husband and son, as a dutiful wife and devoted mother; by many who have known the ravages of disease for her tender benevolence and anxious sympathy, and by all who knew her as a lady of christian fidelity and great stability of character.

"After the burden, the blissful need,
After the furrow, the waking seed,
After the flight the feathered nest,
After the shadowy river—rest."

The crowning event of the season in society at this place was witnessed at the residence of Mr. A. P. Gooding, proprietor of Thorndalia Stock Farm, on Wednesday, the 12th inst., the occasion being the marriage of his daughter, Miss Lula to Mr. E. P. Berry. Only a few immediate friends and relatives were present. The bride was richly attired in an elegant bronze, brocaded silk traveling costume while the groom was arrayed in the conventional suit of black. The attendants were Miss Eva Lloyd of Missouri, and Dr. M. H. Davis, of this place. The ceremony was rendered doubly impressive by his reverence, W. J. Loos of the Christian Church. Mr. and Mrs. Berry, left at once on an extended bridal tour to St. Louis and other cities of the west. May the cup of bitterness be to them unknown and their little kingdom a perpetual feast of all that is most delightfully sweet.
